

FERPA Training

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) is an important piece of federal legislation to consider when discussing the use of student data. To address districts' questions and need for knowledge about FERPA, the DOE invited staff members of the U.S. Department of Education and national experts on FERPA to present at four sessions open to districts.

Description:

This training will discuss FERPA requirements, give answers to frequently asked questions from districts, and provide scenarios around FERPA that districts may encounter.

Purpose:

The goal is that people leave the training more confident in their understanding of FERPA and the impact it has for districts. Participants are encouraged to bring questions or topics of interest.
